

NJMC launches history blog

The New Jersey Meadowlands Commission (NJMC) has recently launched its Meadowlands History Blog, www.meadowpast.net. The blog features information on local museums, historical sites and events, notable residents and unique happenings in the Meadowlands in the past and present. The blog will also include links to local and regional history sites. The blog is an outgrowth of the NJMC's Oral History Project. Those who wish to share information on a historical event or meeting or to suggest a story for the Oral History Project, contact Brian Aberback at brian.aberback@njmeadowlands.gov or 201-460-4619.

Featured in recent blog posts is information about the NJMC's next event, "Old-Fashioned Afternoon at the Movies" to be held in the Meadowland's Environment Center on Jan. 30.

The history blog joins the NJMC's other blogs, the Meadowlands Nature Blog (www.meadowblog.net) and the Economic Growth and Stability Blog (www.njbiz.net).
